- 1.1.1. This Privacy Policy aims to give you information on how Contribution Compass collects and processes your personal data through any form of your engagement with Contribution Compass, such as when you provide your third-party services to us, or correspond with us, use our Services, access or use the Website, or provide us with your personal information in any other way (such as when participating in surveys, participating in events or signing up for newsletters).

- 1.1.3. It is important that you read this Privacy Policy together with any other privacy policy or fair processing notice we may provide on specific occasions when we are collecting or processing personal data, so that you are fully aware of how and why we are using your data. This Privacy Policy supplements the other notices and is not intended to override them.
- 1.1.4. You have the option to provide us with some demographic information to help us refine our profiles further. You can safely ignore this option if you do not feel comfortable providing this information. Such demographic information includes your age, country of residence, gender, role in your organisation and your organisation’s industry. 1.2.3. Should we be required to access and process any data from your own data subjects, we will operate as a “Processor” (as defined in the GDPR) to you as the Data Controller where we will have a data processing agreement between us to dictate the exact processing functions and obligations we must adhere to. This is most applicable in the context of us receiving data from an employer or company about their own data subjects, to process for a particular instruction of theirs (such as skills analysis). The Data Controller providing us with such data and related Processor functions will be liable to their data subjects whose data we process, and we will direct all enquiries from such data subjects about our processing allowances to the relevant Data Controller to manage.
